Safety, health and the environment are of fundamental importance to the Rieter Group. Rieter therefore pursues an integrated corporate policy, focusing on the following key areas:

- Safe products and working conditions at all Rieter locations
- Sustainable and efficient use of resources over the entire life cycle
- Compliance with applicable legal requirements and Rieter's internal guidelines

The company actively addresses this by regularly reviewing and analyzing its goals, with the safety of people and products being the top priority. Work processes are constantly reviewed and improved as required, thus guaranteeing compliance with all safety standards.

Rieter is committed to sustainable development that creates added value for shareholders, customers and employees in the long term. The company minimizes environmental pollution and strives to conserve natural resources at all times. This is reflected in the choice of materials and the optimization of production processes, including disposal and recycling.

Added to this is the consistent integration of safety and environmental aspects in research and development for all company products. To achieve these goals, Rieter not only works closely with suppliers and customers, but also advises and supports them.

The safety, health and environmental mission statement of the Rieter Group is anchored in the entire organizational structure – and is actively communicated, coached and monitored.
